

Highlight of the Week:

Google gathers personal health data on millions of Americans from Ascension

- St. Louis-based Ascension is the second-largest health system in the US
- The data amasses lab results, diagnoses, hospitalization records, and includes names and dates of birth

Rate Curves:

Sources: WSJ and BMO Capital Markets

Rapid Report:

Credit Suisse names new head of struggling Investment Bank

- Jim Amine leaves post to head private credit in New York
- David Miller, 22-year veteran, to succeed Amine and join the executive board

WeWork considering T-Mobile CEO

- SoftBank considers John Legere as the new leader for the office-sharing startup
- WeWork targets January for filling the leadership role; Legere is famous for trashing rivals on Twitter and dressing in spirited company attire

Treasury yields lower as investors focus on US-China trade deal

- The trade uncertainty is boosting appetite again for safer assets, such as US Treasuries
- 10-year Treasury note moves to 1.94% and 30-year Treasury bond lowers to 2.40%

Jimmy Carter hospitalized

Carter, 95, admitted to Emory Hospital to surgically remove pressure on brain